

Linda M. Famiglio, M.D., F.A.A.P is a physician, leader and educator with twenty years' experience leading academic affairs, most recently as the Chief Academic Officer for the Geisinger Health System. Dr. Famiglio created the Center for Continuing Professional Development, with Joint Accreditation from the ANCC, ACCME and ACPE for team based continuing education and develops more than 30,000 hours of accredited courses each year. She designed and advised the Advanced Practice Council that focuses on the professional needs and education of Physician Assistants, Nurse Practitioners and CRNAs and the Interprofessional Council that promotes a culture of respect and team based learning and care.

Dr. Famiglio has designed and implemented an enterprise wide faculty development program as well as local and national curricula for leadership, faculty development and interprofessional groups. Her interests have included wellness, integrating quality and transforming systems of care. Dr. Famiglio has served as Chair of the AAMC's Group on Resident Affairs, the ACCME's Accreditation Review Committee and the ACGME's Institutional Review Committee.

Dr. Famiglio is a practicing child neurologist who has trained at Drexel, Hopkins, Duke and the University of Washington. She currently volunteers and serves as the Chief Quality and Administrative Officer for Family Recovery Solutions, a rural, patient centered practice for the treatment of Opioid Use Disorder. She also serves on Pennsylvania Medical Society's CME Advisory Panel and actively teaches students, residents and interprofessional teams.